This video is a continuation of my "Introduction to Stoichiometry". The concepts of limiting reagent, theoretical yield, and percent yield are discussed. A sample problem that resembles a typical ...

Limiting Reagent and Percent Yield

Limiting Reagents and Percentage Yield "If one reactant is entirely used up before any of the other reactants, then that reactant limits the maximum yield of the product." Problems of this type are done in exactly the same way as the previous examples, except that a decision is made before the ratio comparison is done.

Limiting Reactants & Percent Yield Mr. Andersen explains the concept of a limiting reactant (or a limiting reagent) in a chemical reaction. He also shows you how to calculate the limiting reactant and the percent yield in a chemical reaction.

Limiting Reactants & Percent Yield — bozemanscience

A limiting reagent is a chemical reactant that limits the amount of product that is formed. The limiting reagent gives the smallest yield of product calculated from the reagents (reactants) available. This smallest yield of product is called the theoretical yield. To find the limiting reagent and theoretical yield, carry out the following ...

Practice Problems: Limiting Reagents (Answer Key)

In these calculations, the limiting reactant is the limiting factor for the theoretical yields of all products. However, in a reaction to prepare a compound, you may get less than the theoretical yield, because of incomplete reactions or loss. The amount recovered divided by the theoretical yield gives a percent yield (% yield) or actual yield.

20 Limiting Reagent and Percent Yield Worksheet ...

The key to recognizing which reactant is the limiting reagent is based on a mole-mass or mass-mass calculation: whichever reactant gives the lesser amount of product is the limiting reagent. What we need to do is determine an amount of one product (either moles or mass) assuming all of each reactant reacts.
