Language in Thought and Action shifted my thought process in so many ways. I'm able to extract much more quality information from conversations than ever before. An example of what you learn: we get information 2 ways, direct experience (extensional) and everything else (verbal). Extensional info gives us a VERY limited view of the world.

I was one of them: this was the first serious book about language that I read, at the age of 10 in 1954, and it triggered an interest that has lasted through my life. First time readers will find ideas in Hayakawa's book -- that language affects what we think and what we do -- that are important and still fresh.

I've been reading Hayakawa's classic Language in Thought and Action, which is a beautifully written self-defense book against bewitchment by language. Its program of General Semantics was apparently quite influential on Eliezer Yudkowsky of Less Wrong ("the map is not the territory," etc.). It also heavily influenced two popular pseudo-sciences: Dianetics and Neuro-Linguistic Programming.
