"Dance like no one is watching, love like you've never been hurt; sing like no one is listening, and live like it's heaven on earth." In 2001 a columnist in a Chapel Hill, North Carolina newspaper discussed the "heaven on earth" variant of the quotation and ascribed the words to the author and speaker William Purkey.

The walls we build around our hearts to cut us off from pain are the very walls that block us from seeing hope, receiving healing, and feeling love. Here are the tools and inspiration you need to tear down those walls, work through your wounds, repair damaged relationships, and learn to love like you've never been hurt.

Love Like You've Never Been Hurt (Audiobook) by Jentezen ...

Love Like You've Never Been Hurt is a decent read. It serves as a great reminder that we've all experienced pain or that we all will at some point and the key is not to let that pain define you. It's a reminder to love as we have been commanded to by God and He is the perfect example of that love. His example is proof that it is possible.

Love Like You've Never Been Hurt: Hope, Healing and the ...

someone has cut off your love supply. And you are not living fully, the way God intended, because you do not know how, or if it is even possible, to love like you've never been hurt. It's easy to love others when we have no conflict with them. Or when we share the same viewpoints. Or the same theology. Or the same standard.
