Sometimes it's pushback on someone who deserves it. Other times, it's code for "it's not about you because it's all about me." We all assign great importance to ourselves at one time or another. In 2 Corinthians 2:11, Paul says we should live "in order that Satan might not outwit us." So, how is Satan trying to outwit us?

It can be really difficult right now. So isn't it time to just stop and acknowledge that it's not all about the pastor? And pastors, I know that it's hard to let go of the responsibility. So many of us have that annoying savior complex. But, it just might be time to look in the mirror and say, "It's not all about me."

It's constant problem solving and is effortless, presumably because it is non-verbal. Playing music has allowed me to "be in this world" in a sense. That's as far as my foggy state allows me to think about it so far. Added the bit about exam questions being predictable in the olden days. I hear things have changed since then!

I created all types of needless drama in my head about her opinion of me, when in all reality, it's highly unlikely her slow response time had anything to do with me. People get busy, and most of us have way too many online accounts to check on a given day. Even if her actions did have something to do with me, it was pointless speculate about it.
