History. One viewpoint is expressed in the 2007 book Islamic Imperialism: A History, in which the author Efraim Karsh explains his belief of the concept's origin: As a universal religion, Islam envisages a global political order in which all humankind will live under Muslim rule as either believers or subject communities.

Worldwide caliphate - Wikipedia

"Islamic Imperialism: A History," by Efraim Karsh is an important work that effectively dispels several myths about Islam and statecraft. Karsh's central thesis is that, from the beginning, Islamic Middle Eastern powers have been driven more by a traditional urge to empire than by any higher fealty to religion.
