Life is a characteristic that distinguishes physical entities that have biological processes, such as signaling and self-sustaining processes, from those that do not, either because such functions have ceased (they have died), or because they never had such functions and are classified as inanimate. Various forms of life exist, such as plants, animals, fungi, protists, archaea, and bacteria.

Life - Wikipedia

This static view of the cell, however, misses the all-important dynamic aspects of cellular life. The dynamics of a cell can best be understood by examining the course of its life. A new cell arises when one cell divides or when two cells, like a sperm and an egg cell, fuse.
